The opinion of any individual, no matter whether he the oldest inhabitant, or a prototype of Captain Cuttle, as to the force of the wind in a typhoon, as to the fall of water during heavy rains, or as to the noise of a clap of thunder, in comparison with what happened on certain previous occasions is of little value and should not be relied on. It was our own opinion that we have seen a heavierfall of rain in Hongkong than that which did the late damage, and several whom we spoke to on the subject agreed with us. But they as well as we, are surely mistaken, and for this reason. During the last rains, immense boulders were washed down the hill. Some of these were brought down the hill into the military nullah, and were then washed into the bay. Above the Taipingshan tank several of these boulders were washed down the hill, and had come very nearly doing great damage. Now we submit this never happened before, and therefore the last rains must be the heaviest on record.
